HISTORICAL NOTES:

The Wetter House is located at 425 W. Oglethorpe Avenue (formerly South Broad Street) at the corner of West Street. It is three stories and basement high, and of stuccoed brick. The two storied veranda on two façades have very interesting cast-iron railings with medallions containing portraits of authors and poets.

In May 1822 the property was conveyed by the Bank of the State of Georgia to Anthony Barclay, who built the original house. On December 18, 1837, it was transferred to Margaret Telfair. The house was remodelled and the cast-iron work was added in 1857 by Augustus Wetter, a German architect, who married Sarah A.C. Telfair, a widow.
